

THE RED DOG SALOON

Lately we have seen a number of Red Dog Saloon items. I don't know why they are appearing at this time, but we thought it might be appropriate to do a short illustrated list of Red Dog Saloon items of which we are aware.

Next, based on apparent age, is a wooden nickel we showed last year.

And the Scottie puts in another appearance on this 37mm brass token. It is bifacial (both sides are the same), but one side is a little convex and the other a little concave.

Presumably from the Red Dog in Juneau (not the other one in Naknek), this piece is gold on red plastic, 40mm.

And finally, a 34mm brass token, a Red Dog Dollar, redeemable in Goods, Services or Cash. This appears to be the most recent of all the tokens.

We heard on Alaska Public Radio that the Red Dog is temporarily closed. It has recently been sold, and the new owners are awaiting the transfer of the liquor license. Projected re-opening date is said to be March 1st.

For a look inside the Red Dog, with Ray Mansfield and Gordon Kanouse, see the post card on page 12.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS PRICES REALIZED

It must be nearly a record. Two issues completed in less than 20 days! Well, probably not. But this issue just fell together. It was a good thing as I am flying back to Massachusetts to see mom the end of the month. So you will get a quick second dose this year.

It is really odd that I have seen so many Red Dog Saloon items lately. It seemed a logical time to show you some of them. Our thanks to Kurtis Hawk, Dave Philips and Candy Waugaman.

It was a quiet month on eBay, with only one exceptional item, the $1 from Hawk Inlet. One common and one scarce Yukon token sold for their opening bids, the terms common and scarce appropriate for Yukon tokens. None are truly common.

I can't blame the sellers for placing an opening bid. We do it too. But it always leaves one to wonder where the real value is. If the opening bid was $100, would they have made it up to the $250 level? And if no one is paying attention, then a low selling price is no indication of true value either.

Coins related to Antarctica, Military Challenge Coins, ads from Alaska transportation companies, Mt. McKinley medals and a large assortment of items "For the Record" fills out this issue.

LITTLE AMERICA

It is hard to believe that this medal has escaped my notice for 32 years! Perhaps it evaded my eBay searches because this was the first seller that realized that this was from Antarctica! Little America was the "capital" of Antarctica until surpassed by McMurdo on the other side of the Ross Sea/Ice Shelf.

I recognize the reverse die, but don't know who the maker was. Can any reader point me in the right direction?

ANTARCTIC COINS

We think the neatest to appear recently is the commemorative for Princess Elisabeth Station 10 Euro issued by Belgium. It was designed as the first “Zero Emission” station, using renewable energy (solar, wind).

The coin was issued jointly by the Royal Mint of Belgium and the International Polar Foundation. It is struck in silver, it is 33mm. Even the packaging is attractive!

Another interesting silver piece was issued by France for the International Polar Year honoring the centennial of the birth of Paul-Emile Victor. It features a portrait of Victor with icebergs in the background. He guided more than 30 polar missions.

The coin is 37mm, 90% silver. The mintage is 5,000.

incuse (opposite of raised). It is 27mm and struck in aluminum-bronze.

Next is a 2007 Polish 2 Zloty honoring Henryk Arctowski and Antoine B. Dobrowski. Both served on the Belgica expedition of 1897-1899.

The design is quite interesting, with a portrait of the two men, and a ship in the background. The ship is

In 2006, Ukraine issued a 5 Hryvnia coin to commemorate the 10th anniversary of Academician Vernadsky station. This was formerly the British Antarctic Service station Faraday. It is located on Galindez Island, in the Argentine Islands off the west coast of the Antarctic Peninsula.

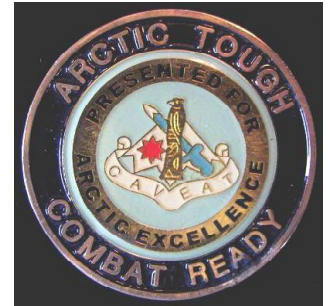

The coin is 35mm and struck in cupronickel. The mintage is 60,000

MYSTERY TOKEN FEEDBACK

Ron Benice writes: In Mystery Token feedback on page 62 of the September 2006 issue of ATC&PN, Lee Poleske mentioned that the Seattle Bar started as the Seattle Saloon in 1904 and changed to the Seattle Bar somewhere along the line before 1918. The 1905 Polk shows both Charles Tecklenburg and John Cummings as owning the Seattle Bar, so the name change came quickly.
